International Symposium on Cosmetics Regulation

MHLW and JCIA will co-host "International Symposium on Cosmetics Regulation" in Tokyo.

MHLW chairs the 12th International Cooperation on Cosmetics Regulation* (ICCR-12) this year. On this occasion the symposium will be held to facilitate understanding of international situation of cosmetics regulation for stakeholders. At the symposium, speakers of regulatory authorities and industry will make lectures and panel discussion regarding ICCR activities, current status of regulation in each jurisdiction and international regulatory collaboration.

The symposium will provide a good opportunity for all stakeholders in this field to get perspective views on global trends of cosmetics regulation and current status and agenda of international collaboration. We look forward to your participation.

* International Cooperation on Cosmetics Regulation (ICCR)

Established in 2007, the International Cooperation on Cosmetics Regulation (ICCR) is a voluntary international group of cosmetics regulatory authorities from Brazil, Canada, the European Union, Japan and the United States. Its purpose is to maintain and enable the highest level of global consumer protection by working towards and promoting regulatory convergence, while minimizing barriers to international trade. This group of regulatory authorities meets on an annual basis to discuss common issues on cosmetics safety and regulation, as well as enter into a constructive dialogue with relevant cosmetics industry trade associations.
